Chapter 1 by Enriqe_the_gr8

A man silently walked down the street. It was nighttime and Edwin was walking home. Edwin was a student learning law. He was in the capitol going to college. He was at school late studying. He was just heading home when he saw a man walking down the street.

Edwin: (thinking to himself) Who is out here this late?

The man was walking towards him. Edwin began to walk a bit faster. He was getting closer, ten feet, eight feet, six feet, four feet. The man was right up on him. The Edwin stopped to confront the man but the man kept walking. He bumped into Edwin but said nothing. Edwin watched the man as he kept walking. The man was wearing all black, a black trench coat, black top hat, black gloves, the only thing that wasn't colored black were his accessories and coat buttons.

The man was up to something, Edwin knew, so he followed the man that turned every corner, often going in circles or changing direction all of a sudden. Edwin eventually lost sight of the man and looked around as he suddenly glimpsed the man through the buildings. He ran right

Edwin climbed back over the fence and tried to retrace his steps. Somewhere along the line, he'd taken a wrong turn, as he'd ended up in front of a subway station on 18 Burk Boulevard, Harborough. Funny. He'd never heard of such a place. Suddenly, in the reflection in the glass, Edwin saw the man. He blinked, and the man was gone.

Edwin: (thinking to himself) My mind must be playing tricks on me!

Edwin thought he was dreaming. "That's it. I'll wake up, and this ridiculousness will all be over!" But Edwin couldn't shake the feeling that this was real.

Chapter 3 by Shane100701

Edwin desperately tried to wake up from what he thought was a dream, but eventually gave up, and tried to find his way home. As Edwin walked down the sidewalk he couldn't help, but feel like he was being watched. As he passed the entrance to an alley way he was grabbed by hands shooting out from the dark alleyway. He was then shoved into the trunk of a car, but as he was being pushed into the car he saw glimpse of a blue creature sitting in the car's front seat.

The trunk door closed and Edwin heard a car door open, and then the car started up, and started to slowly inch foreword. The darkness in the trunk was absolute. All Edwin could think about what he thought was his impending death. After hours of driving the car finally came to a stop, and then the engine was turned off, and he Edwin heard another door open, but he was not removed from the trunk. Finally a couple hours after the car stopped the trunk opened. Edwin saw that he was in a dark cave that smelled of mildew. The man he followed turned out to be his captor. The man lifted him out of the trunk, put a bag over Edwin's head, and said nothing. The man started leading Edwin down what he presumed to be a tunnel because of the low ceiling and narrow space between the walls.

Eventually after about twenty minutes of walking the man stopped pulling Edwin, and forced him to sit down in a hard, and cold chair. Then Edwin was strapped tightly to the chair. Edwin heard a loud growl, and started to shake with the fear of the unknown. Suddenly the bag was ripped off of Edwin's head, and he saw the blue creature he glimpsed in the car pacing around the chair he was strapped to holding a very large knife.

terrified. "Hm... now, you're going to tell me the truth, or I'm going to let him rip you to pieces." The man nodded to the blue creature. "Listen, I, I, was curious." Edwin Answered. The blue monster stepped towards Edwin. "I'm telling the truth! I'm telling the truth!" Edwin screamed. "I believe you." the man said. "Really?" Edwin Questioned "No" the man replied, he the kicked the chair over, where Edwin thought there was ground, there was suddenly nothing. Edwin fell for a long time until...
